COMMENTS:

It has come to my attention that on the 26th of Feb. in the Federal Register the U.S. National Archives and Records Administration (NARA), has proposed a dramatic fee increase, about 338%, for any records requested for copy. I am sure that they are justified in this request, however, it will result in a dramatic DECREASE in requests from genealogists, who are the people who request the most record copies, for information in these categories. Only under conditions of extreme need will anyone pay these new charges to get copies of records. I am drawing your attention to this so that you can take this opportunity to save the government some money and perhaps give you some bonus points in your reelection process. You can DECREASE the budget of NARA for personnel! As a result of this exhorbant fee increase they won't need nearly as many people to look for and copy records because of the decrease in demand for their services. This is a great time to gain election points, decrease government spending via reductions in work force. Not only the direct cost of salaries but the cost of the fringe benefits and medical insurance that they have. Exactly the thing that many corporations do to increase profits and have the CEO qualify for a huge bonus, DECREASE COSTS AND FORCE AN INCREASE IN PRODUCTIVITY PER PERSON! you can gain bonus points for reelection!!! I look forward to your participation in this new budget cutting opportunity. Best regards and keep up the good work. John Proctor
